Here in one book is a collection of original stories and poems that offer hope and have inspired Nan's readers for almost two decades. Each story shares its message through analogies and lessons learned during the journey through grief.

Find energy and renewed spirit in the power of Nan's words. She creates vivid pictures that allow the reader to be present to the moments she describes. She writes about rebuilding identity after loss; transformed relationships; letting go; and the small victories that lead to hope. Read this book in doses so you can absorb the "hope."

This book makes a great gift for someone who is hurting, someone who has lost a special loved one, or to someone who could use reassurance that we are resilient individuals who survive the roller coaster experiences of life and death and grow from telling our stories.

Everyone can find something in these stories that will help them believe in the possibilities of a future not yet written. Here is a sample of stories you will find:

- What is the color blue?
- In Grief and In Joy...telling your story
- Can a horse really fly?-a lesson in hope
- Love is Stronger than Death
- Victory Over a 30' Pole-learning to let go.
- Discover Something Greater Than the Answer to Why?

You will believe that Hope is possible even when it appears elusive!
